

NO INTELLIGENCE ALLOWED

by Brooks Harris

The movie “Expelled: No Intelligence Allowed” with Ben Stein, is a documentary film which supports “freedom of speech” in our society. “Freedom of speech” is tolerated in most areas of our American culture but not when it comes to scientific debate over the science of “origins.”

Many recent scientific discoveries have raised serious questions about the theory of Darwinian evolution, while at the same time giving birth to a theory called “Intelligent Design.” Despite the compelling modern scientific evidence in support of intelligent design, and despite the fact that most Americans want the evidence for and against (not just for) Darwin’s theory taught in schools, any questioning of Darwinism is systematically suppressed in nearly all academic and scientific communities.

True scientific research should always review and test all the available evidence to determine which ideas are most logical. But most scientific institutions and schools only teach one view and teach it as “fact” vs. “theory only” and suppress evidence which oppose their view. Some people in high places must be scared of these new scientific discoveries since they have resorted to ridiculing and persecuting those who question their one sided view.

This suppression of evidence which contradicts Darwinism is suppression at its worst, where the implications reach far beyond the classroom. “Expelled: No Intelligence Allowed” seeks to expose this suppression and give today’s students a glimpse into the amazing discoveries that modern science is revealing.

This film will help you make an informed decision about the teaching of “Intelligent Design along with Evolution” vs. teaching “Evolution alone” to our children. Should our children learn to think critically by giving them the opportunity to see and analyze scientific data from differing views or should they just continue to be taught and expected to memorize data from one view only?

See this film which opened April 18, 2008 in theaters nationwide. Go to see what the “Intelligent Design” debate is all about. Call 800-705-0485 or visit www.expelledthemovie.com for more information. You can sneak a peek by viewing the leader’s guide at this site.

According to this website, “Expelled: No Intelligence Allowed” looks to scientists on both sides of the issue ... and reveals some truly shocking answers. It presents a point-of-view so powerful, that it literally forces a re-examination of these issues. This film is a “must-see” for educators and anyone concerned about the education of our children.